Whether Germany or England win to the war the arguments of the Christians who oppose Meslems is that Turkey will not be what it was; that Arabia is sure to become a route of travel between Europe and the cast, ar English national ward, will hereafter English hallonal ward, will hereafter be more open to Christian propagation. Indeed, the theory is that almost everything is to be different when the war ends. To meet new concitions is the purpose of those go-civiles. Some few profess to see a crisis impending, that Islam will rise and attack, as it has intely done, Christian advance in the Soudan. These alarmists even say there is Christian advance in the County of These alarmists even say there is danger to Christian work in the entire near east. Others see no alarm, the near east. Others see no alarm, but an opportunity growing out of the war to put better teaching into a great part of the present Moslem area. In both England and America the Moslem campaign is now being pushed for larger support
